Chalet Chouqui is one of our best luxury ski chalets for 2020.

Skiing is the ultimate winter pastime for the rich and famous. Whether you are looking for crisp mountain views or a hedonistic Après scene, there are more options than ever to choose from. From incredible private chalets in the Alps to ultra-cool resorts in Aspen, Elite Traveler has scoured mountain resorts all over the world to curate a list of the best luxury ski chalets and hotels in the world this season.

Le Coucou

Méribel, France

Le Coucou offers amazing ski-in, ski-out access to the slopes

We move away from the world of private chalets and into luxury hotels, and we start with one of the most exciting new openings of the season. Le Coucou opened its doors for the first time this season, bringing a new level of luxury to the already star-studded Méribel.

The elegant five-star hotel offers 55 spacious suites and rooms and two stunning private chalets. It boasts a fantastic ski-in/ski-out location perched on the heights of Belvedere, close to Le Rond-Point des Pistes, offering panoramic views across the slopes of Méribel. The private chalets are both independent four-bedroom residences. They have their own ski room, pool and spa, offering guests the utmost privacy but still experiencing the five-star service Le Coucou offers.

There is also a strong emphasis on wellness and recovery. The on-site Tata Harper Spa offers a range of rejuvenating treatments while two swimming pools and a fitness center allow guests to stay active off of the pistes as well. Le Coucou also brings two new restaurant concepts in The Beefbar and Bianca Neve. The former offers some of the world's most prized meats such as Australian Wagyu and Japanese Kobe while the latter brings fresh elevated Italian cuisine to the slopes.
