Up in the Alps mountains, in Meribel, France, Hotel Le Cou Cou emerged on the hospitality scene in 2020. Designed through a haute couture lens by the one and only Pierre Yovanvitch, the hotel shelters its own style.

The Eglantine and Eléonore chalets – complete with large kitchens, dining areas and even their own spas – are located in private nooks of the hotel. Unique and different from the rest of the building, the chalets are in their singular decoration, with layout and personalised services designed to share real moments of happiness. The chalets feature fully equipped kitchen to try traditional mountain recipes, a large cathedral living room with vaulted ceiling and a huge bay window are just some of its impressive and unique offerings.
