

Luxury family ski holidays to book now

4TH NOVEMBER 2022 by ELEANOR DOUGHTY

It's almost time for the first full ski season in three years and there are plenty of exciting new additions in the most popular luxury holiday resorts

S alopettes and helmets are being dusted off, ready to be deployed for another season of skiing because, despite the economic upheaval, luxury ski holidays are as popular as ever.

According to industry specialists, ski lovers who missed out on a few seasons due to Covid are keen to get themselves and their families back on the slopes.

'We're finding that sales of luxury ski resorts are showing no sign of abating,' says Marcus Blunt, co-founder of ski holiday travel agent Heidi. 'Some resorts are up nearly 400 per cent.'

These are the most expensive private schools in Europe

And with those fresh tracks comes a new five-star ski hotel, alpine accommodation renovations and new restaurants. If you're Verbier-bound, a private members' club has popped up since last ski season.

Here are some of the best family luxury ski holidays to book now.

Méribel

Méribel has long been popular with families. Image: Le Coucou

Fresh out of the box for this season at Méribel's family-friendly Hotel Le Coucou is new alpine restaurant Le Fumoir. Tucked away in the old smoking room, it serves up everything from fondue to tartiflette.

New spa experiences from Tata Harper include mother-daughter and father-son treatments from organic brand Minois, for those travelling with grandparents, or older children.

For younger ones, the Kids and Teens Lab, run by Petit VIP, is a personalised kids' club open every day for babies, along with their nannies or parents. For children aged four to 15, there's dog sledding, igloo building, baking and chocolate-making. Teens can enjoy an escape game that takes them through the forest and into Méribel village.

Rates: Nightly rates start from €460 on a half board basis; lecoucoumeribel.com